

DSURJ Resource Curation

Last Modified on 04/15/2021 7:18 pm EDT

The Research and Resources group of DSURJ is working to develop a resource database that uplifts and supports the voices of BIPOC leaders in the sphere of activism to move white people to local, accountable, anti-racist action.

In service of this goal, we solicit submissions from our DSURJ team, and apply an iteration of the CRAAP test to review the resource's currency, relevance, authority, accuracy, and purpose. We endeavor to organize this information in a way that is easily accessible for those who are just starting their antiracist journey, and still informative for those continuing the evolution of their antiracist journey. We hope you find these resources useful to drive continued learning and action. You can provide feedback or ask questions at contact@surjdenver.com.
